Apr. 24, 1987—Comments requested from the Office of Management and Budget, Departments of the Treasury, of State, of Commerce, of Agriculture, of Labor, the U.S. International Trade Commission, and the U.S. Trade Representative.
May 7, 1987—Approved by the Committee and ordered favorably reported.
June 12, 1987—Reported to the Senate by Mr. Bentsen (S. Rept. 100-71), with an amendment in the nature of a substitute, with the following provisions:

A. Trade Agreements Authority

1. Absence of tariff proclamation authority, traditionally granted to successive administrations since 1934. Instead, Congressional approval of tariff cuts under fast track process is required.

2. Revocation of "fast track" procedures by concurrent resolution at any time ("reverse fast track") on grounds of inadequate consultations.

B. Amendments to Sections 301 of the Trade Act of 1974 (unfair trade practices of foreign governments)

1. Mandatory retaliation within 19 months in all cases. Waivers are provided for: adverse GATT rulings; national security; and negotiated settlements approved by industry or providing compensations. In cases not involving "unjustifiable" practices (defined as violations of U.S. international rights, most-favored nation treatment, right of establishment, or protection of intellectual property rights), provides an additional exception if President certifies that removal of the unfair practice is impossible and retaliation would not be in the national economic interest.

2. Mandatory self-initiation (i.e., initiation on the government's own motion, not on the basis of an industry petition) of an unspecified number of cases each year.
3. Transfer of Presidential authority to USTR to determine whether foreign government's practices are unfair.
4. Mandatory quantification of the impact of foreign trade barriers identified in the annual trade estimates report.
5. Designation as an unreasonable practice of pattern of denial of worker rights.
6. Designation as an unreasonable practice of export targeting (defined as government measures having the effect of marking exports of a firm or industry more competitive, including home market protection).
7. In export targeting cases, requirement to study and propose alternative measures to improve a targeted industry's competitiveness if President invokes "National economic interest" waiver.
8. Designation as a discriminatory (ard therefore unfair) practice of state trading.
9. Limitation of GATT exception to action by contracting parties.
10. Pasta retaliation. (Increased variable duties on pasta imports if no agreement is reached with the EC by July 1.)
11. Designation of "adversarial trade" countries, including Japan.
12. Limitations on modification and termination of action.
13. Designation as an unreasonable practice any requirement for technical information as a condition for importation.
14. Evidentiary rule that existence of an unfair trade concession may be inferred from existing circumstances.

C. Amendments to Section 201 of the Trade Act of 1974 (relief from fairly traded imports that injure domestic industries)

1. Elimination of Presidential authority to deny or reduce on "national economic interest" grounds import relief recommended by the International Trade Commission.

2. Increase in maximum relief period from 8 to 10 years.
3. Anti-circumvention provision, authorizing President to expand relief.

S. 490—Continued

4. Exclusion form remedy vote of ITC commissioners who find no injury.
5. Fast-track relief for perishables not subject to ITC injury finding.
6. Provisional import relief not subject to ITC injury finding.
7. Mandatory adjustment plans/commitments from petitioners.
8. Trial auctioning of import quotas. Mandates auctioning in next three Sec. 201 cases involving quotas, with exceptions.

D. Trade Adjustment Assistance

1. Continues, expands, and extends TAA workers and firms.

2. Mandates imposition of fee on imports, not to exceed 1% of value. Mandates negotiations to secure GATT approval of such a fee, but requires implementation by 1990 in any event.
3. Extension of TAA benefits to secondary suppliers and oil and gas workers.
4. Defining all TAA benefits as entitlements, removing TAA from the appropriations process, creating TAA trust fund, and authorizing borrowing authority.
5. New entitlement to TAA training each time a worker is laid off; restarting (or tolling) the 104-week TAA limitation with each layoff.
6. Requirement that workers enroll in training after collecting their unemployment insurance (UI) in order to collect TAA cash benefits, except in specified cases.
7. Automatic entitlement of all workers and firms in an industry to TAA once ITC finds injury to the industry under Section 201.
8. Prohibits Secretary of Labor from limiting TAA training to 104 weeks.

E. Amendments to antidumping and countervailing (AD/CVD) duty law

1. Non-market economy dumping. Imposes offsetting duties on non-market economy imports priced below weighted average price of largest volume eligible market economy country.

2. Anti-circumvention provisions. (a) One aspect of provision goes beyond circumvention to allow AD/CVD order on parts to cover finished products as long as the finished products remain within the scope of the "class or kind" of the merchandise covered by the order on parts. (b) Apparently covers instances where parts are imported by unrelated parties or from more than one country.
3. Monitoring of limited downstream dumping. Requires Commerce to monitor imports of downstream products in order to identify diversionary practices resulting from significant antidumping and countervailing duties on component parts.
4. Monitoring, self-initiation, and acceleration of investigations involving multiple offenders. Requires the ITC to create a product monitoring category for repeat dumpers and Commerce to monitor imports. Under certain conditions, Commerce would have to initiate an AD investigation, unless a substantial proportion of domestic producers of the product asked that an investigation not be initiated.
5. Domestic subsidies. Clarifies that in determining the existence of a domestic subsidy, Commerce must consider the actual, as opposed to merely the nominal benefit of the program.

F. Telecommunications

Mandates retaliation (subject to fast-track legislative approval), against any country that does not provide "substantially equivalent competitive opportunities" for U.S. telecommunications products and services within 18 months. Mandates USTR-determined retaliation within six months against any trade agreement violations, with a violation presumed if actual trade is not as "reasonable anticipated."

G. National Oil Import Ceiling

If oil imports are projected to exceed 50 percent of domestic consumption in next three years, President is required to submit a plan, to be considered by Congress on fast track, to prevent foreign oil dependence from exceeding 50 percent. Plan takes effect automatically in 90 days unless rejected by joint resolution.

H. Miscellaneous Trade Law Amendments

1. Intellectual property. Mandates self-initiation of expedited Sec. 301 cases on intellectual property. Mandates retaliation, with national economic interest exception. Mandates designation of Foreign Commercial Service Officers to follow intellectual property issues. Mandates monitoring and reports by USTR and National Science Foundation.

2. National security (Sec. 232) cases. Establishes 90-day deadline for Presidential decisions and shortens deadline for Commerce reports from 1 year to six months.
3. Trade impact statements would be required for any major federal action that could affect international trade.
4. National Trade Council. Interagency group and membership established in statute. USTR to chair in President's absence.
5. National Trade Data Bank. Establishes ITC-chaired interagency committee and requires collection and publication of extensive economic and trade data on all countries.
6. Extension of sugar duty drawback (refund) period to 14 years.
7. Lamb import quotas. Requires a system parallel to that for beef under the Meat Import Act.
8. Currency negotiations. Requires President to initiate negotiations with countries that peg their currencies to the dollar to achieve exchange rate change.
9. Steel "voluntary export restraint" agreements. (a) Requires inclusion of farm fence panels and other products; absent foreign compliance, forbids granting of flexibilities provided for in the agreements. (b) President may consider steel melted and poured in a country subject to a steel arrangement, which is further manufactured in a non-arrangement country, as subject to the quotas of the arrangement country.
10. Nairobi Protocol/Florence Agreement. Administration-supported provision improving implementation of the Florence Agreement with respect to scientific instruments.
